The life of Jesus Christ is central to all human history. What does that mean? -- In part, it surely means that the Savior's life influences the eternal destiny of every human being who has ever lived, or ever will. You might also say that the life and mission of Jesus Christ, culminating in His Resurrection on that first Easter Sunday, connects all of God's people throughout history:

Those who were born before Christ looked forward to Him with faith, and those born after look back on Him with faith. As we read Old Testament accounts and prophecies, we don't ever see the name Jesus Christ. But we do see the evidence of the ancient believers' faith in, and longing for, their Messiah and Redeemer. So we who are invited to remember Him can feel a connection with those who looked forward to Him. For truly Jesus Christ has borne the iniquity of us all, and in Christ shall all be made alive.

Come Follow Me - Old Testament: April 18th - 24th

"All that the Lord Hath Spoken We Will Do" pg 71; Exodus 18-20

The Israelites' journey from Egypt to the foot of Mount Sinai was filled with miracles — undeniable manifestations of the Lord's matchless power, love, and mercy.

However, the Lord had blessings in store for them that went beyond freeing them from Egypt, and satisfying their physical hunger and thirst. He wanted them to become His covenant people, His peculiar treasure and a holy nation. Today, the blessings of this covenant extend beyond just one nation or people. God wants all of His children to become His covenant people, to "obey His voice indeed, and keep His covenant; for He shows His mercy unto thousands of them that love Him and keep His commandments
